Description of Training Program:

Suburban Truck Driver Training School provides hands-on CDL training to prepare students for successful careers in the, transportation industry. Our Entry-Level Driver Training (ELDT)-compliant program combines classroom, range and road driving experience to build the knowledge, skills, and confidence required of today's commercial drivers. Training is delivered by experienced CDL instructors using a combination of classroom education, hands-on practice, and real-world driving. Students train on late-model tractor-trailers in a controlled training environment before progressing to road instruction. Students are prepared to take the Michigan CDL Skills Test and pursue entry-level employment with local, regional, and over-the-road motor carriers. Suburban provides job placement assistance, connecting graduates with employers throughout the trucking industry.
